Going for gold

The ANZ World Commodity Price Index increased 1.8% m/m in September as stronger prices were recorded for all major sectors excluding forestry. In New Zealand dollar terms, the index fell 0.2% m/m as the NZD Trade Weighted Index lifted 1.0%.

Global shipping prices continue to bounce around as shipping route disruptions persist. Escalated tensions in the Middle East have resulted in the majority of container ships opting for the longer route around Cape Horn rather than risking the more direct passage through the Suez Canal. The Baltic Dry Index lifted 12% during September, but other shipping indices softened during the month. This includes the China Containerized Index, which has eased as we are now past the seasonal peak in exports from China. Dock workers in the United States are currently striking, which is expected to cause considerable delays at many ports.

In world price terms, Dairy prices lifted 2.3% month on month (m/m) in September. Demand for dairy products has strengthened recently, driving prices higher. The volume of product offered by New Zealand exports are currently increasing in line with the seasonal increase in milk volumes. Whole milk powder prices have lifted 24% y/y, while butter prices are up 42%. Butter pricing has been exceptionally strong.

The meat and fibre index gained 1.4% m/m, with the index now up 18.3% y/y. Lamb prices strengthened 5.0% during the month but beef prices softened a little. That said, lamb prices are still relatively weak, whereas beef returns are much stronger. There is less lamb available, and this has helped push up the price being obtained for lamb in the international markets. Prices have improved in Europe and the US, but thus far there is little change in the price of lamb and mutton being sold to China.

The horticulture index rose 3.3% m/m. Kiwifruit pricing shot up 5.0% m/m, offsetting slightly lower returns for apples. Kiwifruit sales have been strong this season despite a much larger volume of fruit being available for export. Green fruit has been smaller in size than desirable, and quality is slightly below average, but the quality of the SunGold fruit harvested this year has been the best seen in the past five years. Demand for kiwifruit has strengthened both in China and several European countries.

The forestry index fell a further 0.3% m/m in September. Usage of logs in China has increased, which is positive, but this is expected to have little impact on the price of logs. The volume of logs to be exported from New Zealand is expected to increase in the coming months, meaning any increase in demand for logs is likely to be met by increased supply without any upward pressure on prices. A few shipments of logs are heading to India each month, but this is still a very small market for New Zealand log exports.

Aluminium prices lifted 4.5% m/m. Prices are now 12.5% stronger than a year ago. Aluminium prices have benefited from recent announcements to increase economic stimulus in China. Also supporting demand for aluminium is China's desire to 'green' their economy. That is increasing demand for electric vehicles, for which many parts are manufactured from aluminium.
